We will strive to:

- connect current students with alumni of colour in different fields; law, academia, finance, media, STEM, NGOs for events such as panels, dinners, networking and realistic conversations about navigating professional spaces as ethnic minorities.
- push for a small, accessible fund that students can apply to for hosting cultural events, creative projects, or heritage celebrations- because celebrating culture shouldn't depend on personal finances.
- actively collaborate with welfare, access, LGBTQ+, international, and gender equality officers, recognising that identity is intersectional and support shouldn't be isolating

As female students of Palestinian and Malaysian Chinese origin, we're running to make our JCR a space where every student of a minority ethnic background feels seen, supported and celebrated!

Instead of only responding when issues arise, we'll create consistent, low-pressure spaces to connect with others:

- monthly BAME brunches
- cultural show & tell presentations ran by students
- informal cultural exchange evenings
- events focused around extensive BAME arts, music, literature, pop culture
- more regular BAME formals
- monthly/termly anonymous reviews and questionnaires for inclusion improvements around college the Downing BAME Community should always exist as a space of solidarity and cooperation!
